

KDFC's The State of the Arts with Jeffrey Freymann-Weyr

San Francisco and the Bay Area have some of the world's best-known performing arts organizations and cultural offerings. As a listener-supported station, we think it's important to let listeners know about activities, concerts, soloists and ensembles coming through the area, and with that we offer you a new daily feature. The State of the Arts on Classical KDFC airs weekdays, just before 8 am, 1 pm, and 6 pm. (During the Summer lull, Wed-Fri). The features are produced by Jeffrey Freymann-Weyr, a veteran of National Public Radio's Arts Desk and Performance Today. Tune in, subscribe to the podcast, or visit this page to hear the latest edition of Classical KDFC's The State of the Arts!

Got ideas? Click here to send them to Jeffrey.

Monday, September 24

Niagara Falling is the name of a world premiere dance piece that is both site specific, and perpendicular to the ground: it will be performed on the side of the Renoir Hotel twice a night from Wednesday to Saturday. Jo Kreiter is the Artistic Director of Flyaway Productions, who along with filmmakers Hi-Jin and David Hodge have created a multimedia work that centers on the idea of 'rescue' - both metaphorical and economic.

There's more information about Niagara Falling at the Flyaway Productions website

In an extensive series of interviews, the pair of filmmakers documented the fiscal woes of the community of Niagara Falls, NY - and they've done similar interviews with those who live and work on Sixth Street near Market in San Francisco. Film and dance will be integrated on the wall of the hotel.

Last week, there were rehearsals on the wall (let the video load, and turn down your speakers before playing, the audio is a bit loud!):

